

Our Goals

1. To engender through the IMPACTS program an awareness that God calls each of us, and every call is a call to serve.
2. Through SETON CALLS initiatives, to offer our University community opportunities to hear and answer the call to servant leadership in the Church and the world.

Impacts Program

Through the work of this Center, we want to permeate every process and program in our University and 'impact' every person associated with our University with four energizing programs:

1. Self discovery
2. Character formation
3. Seeing your life as vocation
4. Called to leadership in the Church and in the World

Center for Vocation and Servant Leadership

It's about...

Discovering your call

Leadership

Life with purpose

Commitment to others

About Us

We promote openness to God's call in both the academic and common life at Seton Hall to support the overall mission of forming students as servant leaders.

Dr. David Foster,
Center Director

Dr. Foster is Director of the Center and philosophy professor for the seminary. With degrees from Notre Dame and

Catholic University, Dr. Foster has been on the faculty since 1987. As the first director of the Center, he is hoping to make an impact on students at Seton Hall. If you can't find him in his office, try the gym.

Carol Ann Koert, Administrative Assistant

Carol Ann is the glue that keeps the office together. She manages the applications of all Servant Leader Scholars, schedules and facilitates workshops, directs all communication from the Center and handles all administrative and budgetary issues. Carol Ann is also a skilled baker and enjoys showing off her culinary talents.

Andrew Brereton, Assistant Director for Career Mentoring

Andrew works with the Director of the Career Center, Jacqueline Chaffin, and her staff to incorporate the concept of "calling" or "vocation" into the Career Center's programs. He's spent years figuring out what he wants to do with his life and would be happy to help you answer the same question. He loves travel and the outdoors and anything with the word "adventure" in it.

Robin Cunningham, Mentor/Coordinator of Vocational Advising

Robin divides her time between working as a mentor in Freshman Studies and being the Coordinator for Student Impacts program in the Center for Servant Leadership. Robin is excited about the possibilities that the Lilly Grant has brought to Seton Hall and is proud to be a part of it.

Kristen Weis, Director of Community Outreach

Kristen is responsible for two important projects on campus—SHELLS (service learning) and the Community Renaissance program. Working with faculty, students and community members, Kristen hopes to build and strengthen partnerships within the community and encourage students to consider a career of service.

David Peterson, Coordinator for Spiritual Programs

David's responsibilities include working with the RA's on spiritual programming and being a liaison between the Center for Servant Leadership and Campus Ministry.

Msgr. Richard Liddy, Center for Catholic Studies

Msgr. Liddy is a familiar face on campus, from his 5th floor room in Xavier Hall, to the classrooms of Fahy, and the sidelines at basketball games.

To keep in touch with students, he regularly puts a pan of chocolate chip cookies in the oven and opens his door for night prayer at 10:00 pm, Monday to Thursday.

Fr. Paul Holmes, Vice President

Father Paul Holmes, one of the University's vice presidents, oversees the Center for Vocation and Servant Leadership. With degrees from Seton Hall, Yale, and Rome, Father Holmes serves in many capacities, including interim dean of the School of Diplomacy and International Relations and co-chair of the Human Relations Council. A dynamic teacher, Father Holmes continues to offer Contemporary Moral Values each semester and is chaplain to the Phi Kappa Theta service fraternity.
